From: Route Fifty
To: Joe Bianco
Subject: Learn how Bakersfield can build for a resilient future with tech
Date: Thursday, June 7, 2018 2:00:13 PM

June 14
8:15 - 11:15 AM
Honeypot (Los Angeles)
Save your spot

As new technologies continue to emerge, public safety leaders are finding new solutions and methods for some of our oldest problems. At the same time, new threats and questions continue to emerge.

Join Route Fifty in Los Angeles on June 14 for a special morning briefing exploring the intersection of public safety and technology. Check out our speakers below and learn why this is a must-attend event for anyone interested in how technology will shape government operations.

More Information | Agenda | Register

Deputy Mayor Gorell

Deputy Mayor Jeff Gorell leads Homeland Security and Public Safety for the City of Los Angeles. Learn how first responders and emergency managers in the city are harnessing the latest technology to speed response times, increase intelligence, and better prepare us for the next disaster

Seleta Reynolds

Seleta Reynolds runs the Los Angeles Department of Transportation as General Manager. Hear how she is planning for a future of urban air mobility and explore the public safety implications of air-taxis

Jeanne Holm, is the Senior Technology

Jeanne Holm

Advisor to Mayor Garcetti. From artificial intelligence and facial recognition to the future state of security in cyberspace, she will discuss the looming policy issues as we enter a brave new world of public safety technology

Steve Hissong

Steve Hissong serves as Acting Deputy Chief of Training and Support Bureau at the Los Angeles Fire Department. Hear about how LAFD is using drones to fight wildfires and learn what other emerging technologies are available to first responders

Marissa Aho

Marissa Aho, Los Angeles Chief Resilience Officer, will discuss how technologists and emergency management leaders working together to prepare for and respond to disaster

Government Executive Media Group
600 New Hampshire Ave NW, Washington DC 20037
Have a question? Contact us

This email was sent to jbianco@bakersfieldpd.us from Government Executive Media Group.
If you believe this was sent to you in error, please safely unsubscribe.